

Boston, Aug. 26, 1844.

Dear bro. George:

8 Your letter of last night, announcing the death of our beloved mother, has just come to hand. It is an event for which we have been endeavoring to prepare our minds; and now that it has taken place, we trust to be able to meet it in the spirit of christian faith and resignation. She was truly "one of the excellent of the earth," worthy of all praise and admiration. Advanced as she was in years, she did not outlive her usefulness. It is painful to part with one so beloved, yet it is all right. We shall, I trust, join her, and all the other members of the endeared family who have been removed, in that other and better world. Helen is in tears, and will miss mother exceedingly. Poor dear Sarah! my heart is full of sympathy for her, for this fresh blow must strike her very heavily. But let us all say from the heart, "The will of the Lord be done," and it will go well with us.

We shall leave in the morning train for Providence. Mr. May happens to be in the city, though I have not yet seen him; but I have no doubt he will accompany us to P., if no insuperable obstacle prevent. Yours, in brotherly sympathy,
Wm. Lloyd Garrison.
